IT'S WORK O'CLOCK

By: Malwande Dlamini

See You At The Top: Tell us about your hustle and what do you love about it?

Phiwayinkhosi Dlamini: My name is Phiwayinkhosi Phila Dlamini and I love selling. I am currently director at Phiwa Curtains Home Improvement, where we specialise in sewing and installing curtains and blinds, cleaning windows and we have recently introduced bedding to our services. What I love about my hustle is that it gives me the opportunity to create; turning an idea into reality. It also gives me the opportunity to create connections with different people, which is something I value the most.

SYATT: What inspired you to become a young businessman?

PD: "When I grow up, I want to be a businessman," I used to utter these words back in primary school but, it all dates to high school where I illegally started selling snacks to try make ends meet. There I fell in love with selling and ever since then I have been getting such opportunities; started a clothing brand 'Toe Tag Son' and I have been selling forever, I host events, sold sneakers, and even tried bottling Still Water. I am now convinced selling is what I love doing the most and I get inspired every time I get the opportunity to create and sell.

PHIWA CURTAINS

SYATT: Have you won any awards as a hustler and if so, what are they?

PD: In my 4 years of doing business, I have seen the recognition grow, in 2021 I won Hustler of The Year award at the Jumbo Awards. In 2023 again, I got recognised by Marydee Isibuko Foundation where I won the Rising Star Award for Entrepreneur of The Year. To me this is much humbling and shows hard work and dedication pays off in the end.

SYATT: Brag about one thing you did as a hustler

PD: One thing I can brag about as a hustler is that God has kept me going and growing. Despite the hardships I experience, I keep going and the resilience is evident. I realised working with people is not child's play and needs patience, honesty, and discipline, I have been practicing these and its working for me. I have been set back a lot of times yet, I still wake up every day to a new chance of learning and creating.

SYATT: One personality trait you have that helps you in your hustle

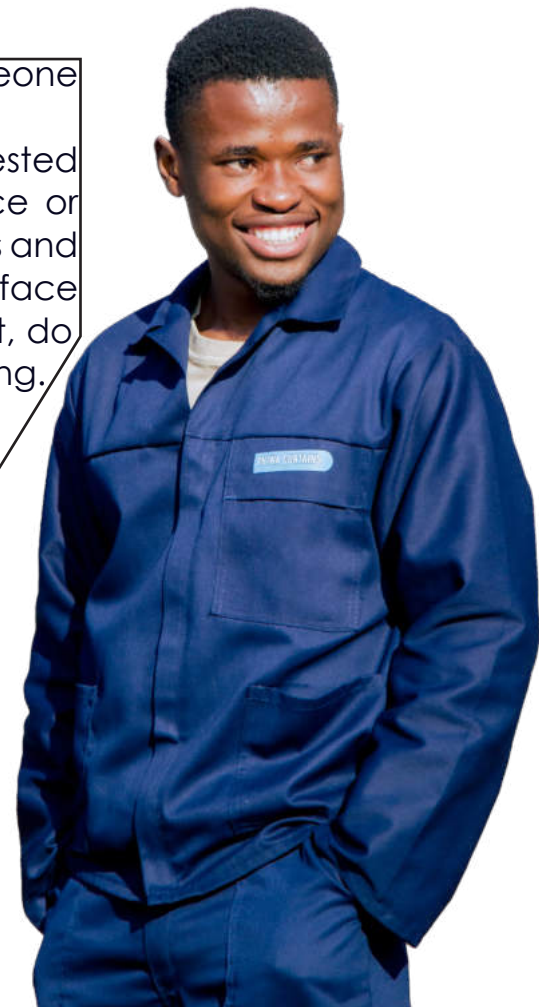

PD: Once again, I think being resilient has kept me going. I always tell myself that every sale is like asking a girl out or simply doing maths; it is either a Yes or No, heads or tails. This helps me treat victory and defeat as one imposter.

SYATT: What are some of the challenges you have faced as a hustler?

PD: As a hustler I experience a lot of balancing work; from personal life to dealing with competition and financial stress. I'm still in school and this adds to the weight. I also experiencing lack of support from my family and this sometimes brings the fear of failing and self-doubt. Working with a lot of people also brings about burnout, lack of time and exhaustion.

SYATT: What is the best advice you can give to someone who wants to become a hustler?

PD: One advice I always give to anyone who is interested in starting their own hustle is "Go for it!" Any chance or opportunity you get, pray, hold-on to it with both hands and go for whatever you want to start. Every situation you face becomes a lot lighter if you face it. When you go for it, do not overthink because you will end up procrastinating. Just go for it!!!

Searched for a partner and got Cubanated

By: Malwande Dlamini

February is the month of love, before you dive into my experience, I hope you had an amazing month of love, and as you reminisce on the experience, don't forget to smile. If the month wasn't filled with love well, love has no expiry date, does it?

Relationships are not only about finding the right partner but they're also about being the right one. So as I sat on that table, I went through the menu trying to get the right partner for my stomach, at Cuba Nora. As my eyes fell on 1/4 chicken with a side of potato chips (it's my poison, I confess) to my disappointment they had no chicken, so no Wings no Quarter and surprisingly no Samosa, all my favorites were off the table. You know in life, before choosing a partner, you have to have options, so when the one you want isn't available, you sway towards the next best available one, in this case it was a burger, maron burger to be specific, it was my first time having it and the positive hope was yanked from me as soon as I took the first bite, not that it wasn't edible, it just wasn't worth the money nor the 30+ minutes we waited, one side was dry the other had all the sauce, and not just that the burger meat tasted bland and had a bit of rubbery taste. I love potato chips, I was disappointed to see them a bit burnt especially on the edges, and it didn't take long to have dry up before I can finish them, I mean who wants to rush through potato chips when they deserve to be savoured? Despite having nice staff it, when it comes to food and I hope the next time I go there, Cuba Nora would have improved.

"I think it's time to take my taste buds to the world, come with me!" Malwande Dlamini

The balance of Professional & Wife duties

By: Mrs. Samu Busika

In our previous issue we explored the concept of makoti, its origin and how a makoti is viewed in the African culture. We promised to go deeper into looking at the reality of the modernization of the African Society and how it influences the lives of new generation of bomakoti in handling their affairs and those of their families.

There has been a big shift in the African Society and culture where bomakoti are concerned. The 1950s and 60s were probably an era of ideal homes and perfect housewives. Yet came a different era that marked the beginning of a momentous social change; the rise of "independent" women and the rise of the working wife and mother, an era that proves to be transformative.

Bomakoti's have become resourceful, well-adjusted woman who earn for themselves and make meaningful contributions in their families. Women are now brought up with career aspirations, parenthood aspirations and marriage aspirations. These three roles are not easily compatible. This is made worse by the recent movements encouraging young girls and women to follow their dreams, to make it big out there, and to fulfill their goals. Whilst this may be good for our society, it most likely brings other dynamics on the table for a makoti and her family. At the heart of every discourse of marital challenges in the contemporary society lies the question of how best to balance one's career with one's marriage and family responsibilities. The issue of career women is also as old as the question of gender equality and the call for more empowerment of women in the society. The problem of balancing the Makoti's career and her marriage cannot be ignored. We have seen and heard of the implications it has mainly on the family, particularly if makoti struggles to balance her responsibilities where she fully dedicates her life to her profession with utmost dedication, passion, and ambition at the expense of the marriage or family. Family-work balance can be a complex issue that involves cultural values, financial values, gender roles, career paths, time management and many other factors. The understanding of these factors is not only important for the makoti but also for her husband so that a sweet balance can be found in their daily lives. If makoti is a career driven woman, staying in the kitchen for the whole day can be frustrating for her and possibly resulting in an unhappy wife. But what if the man truly believes it is only his responsibility to provide for the family and would rather have the wife working at home? It would be interesting to explore also the advantages and disadvantages of the modern working-makoti. Let us see in our next issue.

Thando: The Multifaceted Force of Change

By: Thembelani Nhlabatsi

At just 32 years old, Thando Ntshangase is making waves in both the entertainment and political spheres of Eswatini. With his vibrant personality, unwavering determination, and a passion for bringing about positive change, Thando is a force to be reckoned with. In this exclusive interview, we delve into Thando's journey, his motivations, and his vision for the future.

From Humble Beginnings to Empowering Dreams

Thando, born and raised in the underserved area of Siteki ka Ndzangu, understands the challenges and barriers faced by his community. Inspired by his own humble background, he was driven to create a better future for himself and those around him. With the support of his mother, who instilled in him the value of education, Thando embarked on a path to ignite his talents and transform his circumstances.

Juggling Personalities for Endless Opportunities

Thando's diverse range of personalities has become his strength. His bubbly, innovative, and artistic character allows him to connect with people from all walks of life. This versatility has not only opened doors for various income streams but has also enabled him to engage comfortably with individuals of different ethnicities, religions, age groups, and genders. Thando's ability to relate to everyone, while standing against inconsiderate and heartless individuals, showcases his unwavering commitment to the welfare and health of others.

Driven by a Desire for Change

Thando's entry into the political arena was fueled by his deep-rooted desire to uplift his community and address the disparities faced by the marginalized. As a runner-up in his constituency's parliamentary race, Thando witnessed firsthand the challenges faced by his people and the influence of money and corruption in politics. Determined to bring about meaningful change and inspire the youth to dream once again, Thando continues to champion equal opportunities for education and skill development.

Lessons Learned and Future Aspirations

Thando's political journey has taught him a valuable lesson: the enduring suffering of a community can make them vulnerable to temporary solutions in exchange for votes. However, this setback has not deterred him from his mission. While he continues to work towards uplifting his community, Thando also embraces his artistic talents and organizational abilities, generating income through various projects. His dedication to his people remains unwavering, promising a future where he can make a lasting impact.

The Interplay of Politics and Entertainment

Thando firmly believes that politics and entertainment go hand in hand. Thando's unique ability to merge politics and entertainment allows him to reach a wider audience and effectively communicate important messages. He draws inspiration from legendary figures like Bob Marley, Miriam Makeba, and Lucky Dube, who used their music to advocate for political change and social equality. The progressive entertainment sector in Eswatini has the power to inspire social change and communicate important messages to the masses. Thando highlights the likes of Timothy Myeni, France Dlamini, LaZwide, and MdockiesHlophe, who have seamlessly transitioned from entertainment to politics, using music and other forms of art to address social issues and advocate for political transformation.

Gratitude and Support

Thando acknowledges the instrumental role played by numerous individuals in his journey. His mother, a pillar of strength, has been his unwavering supporter, even when others didn't understand his different personality facets. Additionally, Thando expresses his heartfelt gratitude to his friends and relatives who have supported him throughout, empowering him to be where he is today.

A Legacy of Love and Perseverance

Thando envisions leaving behind a legacy of love and compassion. He believes in the power of helping others and standing up for the truth. Throughout his journey, Thando has remained steadfast in pursuing his dreams, never wavering in the face of challenges. His determination and resilience serve as an inspiration to those who encounter his path.

Authenticity, Transparency, and Mutual Benefit

When it comes to representing a brand or hosting as an MC, Thando values authenticity, transparency, and mutual benefit. He seeks partnerships that align with his values and goals. Thando understands the importance of genuine connections and strives to create meaningful collaborations that benefit both the brand and the artists involved. For him, it's not just about the superficial aspects but about building lasting relationships based on trust and shared objectives.

The Power of Fashion and Appearance

Thando's fashion sense is inspiring and has become an integral part of his persona as an MC. He believes that physical appearance plays a crucial role in influencing crowd engagement. When he steps on stage, Thando wants to inspire the audience by showcasing his dedication and passion through his appearance. By dressing for the occasion and representing himself as a the impact it has on securing future opportunities.

A Future of Promise

As Thando continues to pursue his passions, he envisions a future where he can make a lasting impact on his community. His dedication to helping others and his unwavering commitment to truth and justice will undoubtedly shape his path as both an MC and a politician. Thando's journey serves as a reminder that one individual can make a significant difference in the world, and he is determined to leave his mark by inspiring others to follow their dreams and stand up for what they believe in.

Thando is a force to be reckoned with, blending his talents in entertainment with his passion for politics. Through his love for people, dedication to authenticity, and impeccable fashion sense, Thando is set to leave an indelible mark on both the entertainment and political landscapes. As he continues to rise, his impact will be felt ashion and beauty go hand in hand, as they allow individuals to express their personal style and enhance their natural features. In the realm of beauty, makeup is a powerful tool that can transform one's appearance and boost confidence. So, let's dive into the world of makeup tutorials and styling tips!

Makeup Tutorial:

A makeup tutorial is a step-by-step guide that teaches you how to create a specific makeup look. Whether you're a beginner or an experienced makeup enthusiast, tutorials can help you learn new techniques, experiment with different products, and achieve a flawless finish. Here's a basic outline of a makeup tutorial:

1. Prep your skin: Start with a clean face and apply moisturizer to hydrate your skin. Use a primer to create a smooth canvas and help your makeup last longer.

2. Base makeup: Apply foundation or tinted moisturizer that matches your skin tone. Conceal any blemishes or under-eye circles with a concealer.

3. Eyes: Choose an eyeshadow palette and create a beautiful eye look. Blend different shades to create depth and dimension. Apply eyeliner and mascara to define your eyes.

4. Brows: Fill in your eyebrows using a brow pencil or powder. Define the shape and fill in any sparse areas for a polished look.

5. Cheeks: Add color to your cheeks with blush or bronzer. Apply it to the apples of your cheeks or along your cheekbones for a natural flush or a sun-kissed glow.

6. Lips: Choose a lip color that complements your overall look. Apply lipstick or lip gloss to complete your makeup.

Remember, makeup tutorials are versatile, and you can find specific tutorials for various occasions like natural everyday makeup, glamorous evening looks, or even special effects makeup for costume parties.

Stylist Tips:

When it comes to fashion, a stylist can help you curate a wardrobe that reflects your personality and flatters your body shape. Here are a few stylist tips to elevate your fashion game:

1. Know your body shape: Understanding your body shape is essential for dressing in a way that accentuates your best features. Whether you have an hourglass, pear, apple, or rectangle shape, there are specific styles and silhouettes that can enhance your figure.

2. Mix and match: Experiment with different clothing pieces to create unique outfits. Don't be afraid to mix patterns, textures, and colors to add visual interest to your looks.

3. Accessorize: Accessories can elevate any outfit. Experiment with statement jewelry, scarves, belts, hats, and bags to add a personal touch and complete your look.

4. Play with proportions: Experiment with different proportions to create balanced outfits. For example, pair a loose-fitting top with skinny jeans or a fitted blouse with wide-leg pants.

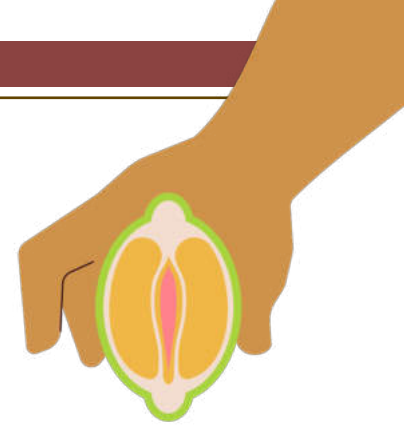

5. Dress for the occasion: Consider the event or occasion when choosing your outfit. Dress appropriately while still expressing your personal style.

6. Confidence is key: The most important aspect of fashion is feeling confident in what you wear. Wear clothes that make you feel comfortable and reflect your true self.

By combining makeup tutorials with stylist tips, you can create a cohesive and personalized look that showcases your unique style and beauty. Remember, fashion and beauty are all about self-expression, so have fun exploring different looks and finding what makes you feel your best!

Fishy Smell After Sex

By: Lelo Mkholo

“Sex is part of human nature, but protecting yourself during sex is all too often overlooked in the heat of the moment. Why would anyone want to ruin the fun by worrying about STI'S or an unplanned pregnancy? Although some may not think it to be important, people in Eswatini test positive for chlamydia, with genital warts, herps and gonorrhoea. We're not saying don't have sex, we're just suggesting that you do it safely”.

What can cause a smelly vagina after sex?

A healthy vagina is never odour-free. It is completely normal for your vagina to have a natural scent that is individual to you. But there may be reasons why your vagina has a different smell than usual after sex. Here, we consider the reasons why and whether you need to do anything about it.

How should a vagina smell?

Your vagina is a carefully balanced ecosystem and will usually be a host to a community of good bacteria. The main bacteria is called Lactobacillus, similar to the type found in live yoghurts. Lactobacillus generates lactic acid and hydrogen peroxide which keeps vaginal pH at the ideal range of 3.5-4.5. These acidic conditions act as a disinfectant and discourage unwelcome bacteria from causing infections. It is these natural bacteria that can contribute to a vagina's natural scent.

Vaginal odour and sex

During exercise and sexual activity, it is normal for the genitals to get sweaty, and this may contribute to a stronger vaginal odour. However, if you notice a stronger fishy smelling odour after sex, it could be an infection called bacterial vaginosis. The infection causes thin, grey, fishy smelling vaginal discharge that is more pungent when in contact with semen.

Can semen cause vaginal odour after sex?

Semen is normally a white or grey coloured fluid that carries the sperm and has a mild chlorine-like smell. With sexually transmitted infections (STIs), it is possible for the semen to change colour to yellow or green and smell unpleasant. This means semen could be the cause of vaginal odour after sex. The vagina is a self-cleaning organ, and any remaining semen will exit the body via a woman's discharge. Sperm can survive for a maximum of five days inside the vagina.

Other reasons for vaginal odour

- Hormonal changes
- Medication
- Diet

If you have an unusual vaginal odour, particularly if accompanied by symptoms such as an itchy or irritated vagina, or a change in discharge, you should contact your doctor.

Potential causes include:

- Poor hygiene.
- Sexually transmitted infections- such as trichomoniasis.
- Thrush infection.
- Vaginal and cervical cancer.

SWEEP YOUR CUSTOMERS OFF THEIR FEET

By: Jumbo Khumalo

The previous month we discussed the practices of successful brands. One of the skills you need to develop as a hustler is satisfying customers. Everyone has a customer. It is just that some customers are called students, clients, subordinates, your boss, investors or kids. In this article let us discuss customer satisfaction.

We live in a customer-centered economy. Everyone should be thinking day and night about how to please customers faster, better, and cheaper.

YOU

1. The #1 rule of customer satisfaction is, 'the customer is always RIGHT'. If ever the customer seems to be wrong, refer back to rule number one.

2. The second rule is that 80% of customer satisfaction comes from people dealing with other people. You can hardly satisfy people with goods or paper of any kind. People are emotional, and they can be satisfied only as the result of their interactions with other people. So be kind and loving to them.

3. Thirdly, determine where you rank on the 3 levels of customer satisfaction and develop a plan of action to move toward the highest levels. The first level is meeting customer expectations. The second level is where you exceed customer expectations. The third level is where you amaze your customers. This is where you are so good at going above and beyond anything they would expect that not only do they buy from you again and again, but they tell their friends to buy from you as well.

Sam Walton once said, "We all have the same boss, the customer, and he can fire us any time he wants by deciding to buy somewhere else." Till we meet next month, sweep your customers off their feet.

CHILDLIKE FAITH

By: Babhekwa Damini

Matthew 18:3 “Truly I say to you, unless you turn and become like children, you will never enter the kingdom of heaven. Whoever humbles himself like this child is the greatest in the kingdom of heaven.”

Childlike faith has a humble state of mind. Children trust their parents to provide for them in all ways. We should also trust God with all things. Scripture backs this up in the book of Proverbs 3:5 “Trust in the Lord with all your heart and lean not on your own understanding”. If we choose to trust in God to be our provider, it gets easier because we are expectant like a child.

Lately my prayer has been simple, “DEAR GOD MAY I HAVE A CHILDLIKE FAITH, AND MAY I BE BLINDED BY YOUR LOVE SO THAT I COMPLETELY TRUST IN YOU.” And with tears flowing down my cheeks I have been uttering these words in Prayer.

You see, the enemy doesn't want you to believe Gods' word. This is because when you do, you will know you are forgiven, loved, special and called. You'll suddenly love, have kindness and see yourself and others through Gods' eyes. If you allow the enemy to convince you otherwise, you will live in the past. You will have doubt and stay stagnant without any faith. That is why it's important that we trust GOD always.

Momentum is only built when you move. Faith without works is dead. Every small step counts. Try God and see who you will become when you decide to move with Jesus in totality.

Don't be surprised by who you'll be once you trust God with every part of your life.

AMA2000

By: Ziyanda Souza

"I want to secure the bag this year."
"This year I'm buying an iPhone."
"This year is my turn to shine."

Those were part of our New Year's resolutions for 2024.

February being the second month of the year is the perfect time to look into investments. It is very important that as a young person you are well educated about the importance of investing. We've had a number of cases where people have lost their assets to investments they thought are the best for them. That is why it is important that before investing you do a proper background check into that investment.

The first step to investing as a young person is to open a bank account. The good thing about being liSwati living in Eswatini is that you can open a bank account at any age.

That on its own is a lifetime investment. You will be able to deposit your savings into that account, and the fun part is that even if the bank gets robbed your money is still safe.

It is also important that parents teach their children what investing is. That's because this is a very important lesson that they will grow up knowing its importance, and they will be able to do it practically.

One of the richest people in the world once said "Do not save what is left after spending, but spend what is left after saving." Before the year ends you would have been able to buy that dream phone without asking for money from your parents to buy it. Nothing beats the feeling of having something you've bought with your hard earned money. This month we're keeping it simple but rich.

LOVE IN VARSITY

By: Nkosephayo Dlamini

February - the month of love. It's also youth month, depending on who you ask! Everywhere you go these days you're confronted by flowers, chocolates and cards decorating shelves in beautiful reds and pinks. Everyone is expecting expensive gifts for Valentine's Day, especially university students that are new to the dating game. After all, they left their high school partners with the promise that 'bafana/emantfombatane akapheli, nito-batfola nanifika emvasi'.

Surviving the everyday challenges of Varsity is hard enough without the additional pressure of umjolo. Varsity is the first place you're allowed great freedom. It is where you meet a variety of people. The formula to meeting the one is unclear, though. You are first warned that Varsity boys are on the loose and will prowl on you. You are therefore warned that you must not become easy prey. Then lecturers encourage you to leave Varsity with academic, marriage and even birth certificates if need be. Your classmates start dating and it goes well for them.

Some strike gold and find their soul mates on the first try, tempting all of us to move to Fonteyn, at the promise of true love. The rest are unlucky, experiencing heartbreak after heartbreak but never giving up. So you hope for the best and keep trying although the challenges persist. The ones you want, don't want you and the ones that want you... well we all know the answer to that. But at the gist of it is this: Love is a beautiful thing. Varsity relationships taught us to open our hearts and let someone love us. Life is short, and love is something you must experience at least once in your lifetime.

For the single folk this month, if no one is buying you flowers, chocolates or socks, just focus on the slogan "Sibizelwe eBungcweleni". Join the festivities at a Nazarene Church near you, where you are guaranteed to get a handful of sweets. Next month, we try again!

ACTS OF KINDNESS

By: Sibonile Cbobo Bulunga

Bob Kerrey once said, “Unexpected kindness is the most powerful, least costly and most underrated agent of human change”. Here’s a story from one of my caring aunt who wanted to remain deidentified.

Couple of months ago at Manzini Bus rank, my aunt noticed a boy which we assumed was 6-7 years old. He was squatting next to us with his head hung down. In his hand was a stick he was holding, making indecipherable writings on the ground. Due to the high temperatures of that day, my aunt shared the bottle of refreshing drink with him. It bothered my aunt that for the past half an hour the boy was still on the same position and alone.

My aunt then approached the boy and tried to converse with him, “How are you my son?” she asked and he respectfully responded “I’m Ok ma’am”. She continued to ask the boy that why was he all by himself in such a busy town. He narrated that he was left there by his half-sister in the morning to wait for his mom to pick him up and go pay a visit to his maternal home for the weekend.

My aunt then offered food and more to drink to him because he has been on an empty stomach since morning to the time we met him in lunch hours. He took the food and fed himself.

Aunt took it upon herself and deserted her other errands to await the arrival of the young boy’s mother to ensure his safety and well-being on that day. An hour later, the young man’s mother arrived and he was delighted and shared the kind gesture he received from my aunt. The boy’s mother asked how can she thank her, and my aunt said, “You have a good young man there, take good care of him”, and they dearly departed.

Why you are afraid of giving Love another chance?

By: Mayenziwe Magongo

Anonymous:

"Love never loved me back, I loved someone who broke my heart, my soul & my self esteem and what's so sad about it is that I still love this person as broken as I am."

Anonymous:

"I legit don't trust anyone! As in, no one at all, to a point where betrayal has become a normal thing. It is also a mental disorder that comes with breakups and missing someone you can't be with anymore. Hence why I'm afraid of giving love another chance."

Anonymous:

"I'm not afraid of giving love another chance but I think I've healed too much as I don't like nobody anymore. I've been alone for quite a long time and I must say that I'm at peace and enjoying the experience. However, I would still give love another chance as long as it's gentle and patient with me this time around. Also, if it's not from God then I don't want it."

Anonymous:

"I'm afraid to give love another chance because in all my relationships I've been treated as an option, while on the other hand I'm always suffering from attachment issues, I don't trust easily and I always feel like maybe there's something that I'm not doing right or enough in my relationships hence why I've since decided to stay single, not because I want to but because I'm afraid of giving love yet another chance."

Anonymous:

"I have no love left in me, I've given love so many chances and I always got hurt, energy is never reciprocated so for me it's more like a spiritual battle. However, I have healed and I've been skeptical about giving love yet another shot to see how everything turns out."

Mayenziwe Magongo – Love is a beautiful thing, however there are people that come into your life, sometimes to be there for a season, they aren't meant to be there always which is why we sometimes find ourselves hooked up with people who come into our lives for a season. There are people that come into our lives like Rocket boosters, if you ever watched a rocket going to space, the booster falls off when it reaches a certain altitude. With that being said, some people are not equipped to handle the altitudes of your desired journey so don't be afraid when they fall off, they're simply not bad people but they couldn't just go any further with where you had planned on reaching with them. Don't let your fears stop you from giving love another sweet shot.
