A SWAZI FOODIE in TAIWAN

By: Malwande Dlamini

They say, “you only know you love her when you let her go,” my her is food. Within a few weeks in Taiwan I have come to the realisation of how much I love and appreciate food from Eswatini. I have had the privilege of eating food at a restaurant called Rice bar. The hospitality was amazing despite being literally the only black people in there. Tell me why the rice is so small, and why pork has to be mixed with beans? I know I said I would take my taste buds to the world but wow the world right now isn't my home. However, I have been acquainted with Indonesians, let me tell you, their snacks are amazing, from pudding, to waffle like sticks called Gery's chocolates and even their noodles, i have been loving the new flavours, my tongue has been dancing in excitement. One thing I do have to give Taiwan, maybe two; their fried chicken is amazing, and their sweet potato tasted like home.

Dora the explorer over here couldn't help herself with the fruit stand, I have been devouring their guavas like nobody's business, did I mention that they are bigger than the tennis ball? Yep I was as shocked as you, their strawberries are definitely sweeter, giving off the romance you see in movies, they deserve to be dipped in chocolate. I know I know! This article is all over the place, so are my tastebuds, from avoiding fish to having to taste it on almost every dish is crazy, bare with me, next month I will do better and explore more. PS: I don't know if I should say fortunately or unfortunately, I had an egg and it was black inside, I still can't wrap my head around it. “Join me as i explore more of Taiwan cuisine,” Malwande Dlamini

Advantages of being an Employed Makoti

By: Mrs. Samu Busika

We are living in an era where money is a very important commodity in every family. We have seen an increase in the number of employed married women and even those who aren't employed are involved in some kind of business. In this article as highlighted in our previous one, let us look at the advantages of an employed makoti.

An employed makoti can bring about both advantages and disadvantages to her family life and personal well-being. Today, many young women are choosing to pursue their careers and contribute financially to their households, rather than solely relying on their husbands for financial support. While this decision can have numerous benefits, it also comes with its own set of challenges.

One of the main advantages of an employed makoti we have seen is the financial stability she provides for her family. Many makotis who have a steady income contribute to the household expenses, save for the future, and afford a high standard of living. This helps alleviate some of the financial burdens placed on her husband and ensures that the family's needs are met. Additionally, there is a sense of security and independence for both partners that comes with having a dual-income as both partners are not solely reliant on one person's income.

I have noticed how many of bomakoti seem to experience a sense of fulfilment and empowerment when they are employed, which they derive from their career. Working outside the home seems to provide her with a sense of purpose, self-worth, and accomplishment. Not to mention that she develops her skills, builds her confidence, and expand her social network.

There is also a sense of identity beyond her role as a wife and mother that comes with being employed, that ultimately allows her to pursue her own passions and goals.

One may argue if it is an issue of being employed or a case of having financial stability and independence as a woman. Let's gear up to hear in our next issue what is the most preferred situation for many modern makotis.

“As a TV presenter, I became a familiar face in households across Eswatini, connecting with viewers on a personal level”

By: Thembelani Nhlabatsi

Mthe dynamic and ever-evolving world of media, few individuals possess the drive, talent, and dedication to make a lasting impact. One such individual is Khanyisile Mabuza, a young and vibrant news editor for Yemaswati Channel in Eswatini. At the age of 30, Khanyi as she is affectionately known to her loved ones has become a trailblazer in her field, breaking barriers and reshaping the media landscape in her country. In this exclusive interview, Khanyi shares insights into her journey, inspirations, and the challenges she has faced along the way.

A Foundation Rooted in Values:

Khanyi's upbringing in a close-knit family and the Lutheran Church has shaped her character and work ethic. With a deep-rooted belief in kindness and respect, she has learned that these qualities open doors and foster positive relationships. Khanyi's Swati heritage, instilled by her grandmother, has added a layer of cultural values that align with her Christian upbringing. This unique blend of principles has guided her in being a genuine and relatable figure to her viewers.

Navigating the Media Industry:

Khanyi Mabuza: A Trailblazer

“Entering the media industry at a young age, I quickly realized the impact I could have on people's lives. As a TV presenter, I became a familiar face in households across Eswatini, connecting with viewers on a personal level,” says Khanyi. Despite the public nature of her work, Khanyi effortlessly separates her media persona from her daily life. She remains humble and appreciative of the support she receives, never considering herself superior to those who watch her on screen.

The Path to Success in Media

Khanyi acknowledges the versatility of the media industry, where talent alone can pave the way for success. However, she emphasizes the importance of acquiring additional skills, such as to stay relevant and adaptable to new media spaces.

The Progressive Media Sector in Eswatini

Khanyi notes the positive strides made by the media sector in Eswatini, particularly with the emergence of online publications. This growth signifies a shift towards a more diverse and inclusive media landscape. However, she believes that financial support is crucial to sustain and further enhance this progress. With Eswatini's growing economy, Khanyi optimistically foresees increased investment in the industry, fostering even greater opportunities for aspiring media professionals.

Acknowledging those who Paved the way

Khanyi attributes her success to the unwavering support and mentorship of her father figure, Qhawe Mamba. His guidance and belief in her abilities have played a significant role in her career development. She also expresses gratitude to the organizations and individuals who have entrusted her with opportunities to showcase her talents as an event MC and marketing executive, allowing her to contribute to their growth.

Leaving a Lasting Legacy

Khanyi's aspirations go beyond personal achievements. She believes in making a positive impact on the lives of others, particularly those in need.

Defining the Role of a Young News Editor:

Khanyi's role as a news editor is multifaceted and ever-changing, depending on the day's events and priorities. As the youngest news editor in Eswatini, she takes on a range of responsibilities to ensure the smooth execution of the news production interpersonal and business acumen, to thrive in a rapidly changing landscape. She also highlights the necessity of developing a thick skin to withstand both constructive criticism and unwarranted judgment from viewers. Khanyi's passion for her craft drives her to continually grow and expand her presence in various media platforms.

Future Aspirations

Like any professional, Khanyi envisions growth and evolution in her career. Recognizing the transient nature of mainstream media, she is actively working on strengthening her presence in the digital sphere. With the rise of social media, Khanyi sees tremendous potential for a lucrative career and aims process. On days when national events involving heads of state unfold, Khanyi's focus shifts to coordinating the team's presence at the location, ensuring comprehensive coverage and live broadcasting.

However, Khanyi's duties extend beyond the newsroom. "I also play a crucial role in marketing, leveraging my expertise to promote the channel and its content. This dual role allows me to have a broader impact and contribute to the success of the channel as a whole," she says.

The nature of Khanyi's work means that her daily routine varies significantly. Some days may require her to work long hours, even up to 24-hour shifts, to cover breaking news or important events. While these demanding days may seem challenging, Khanyi finds them to be the most rewarding. The opportunity to be at the forefront of news reporting, informing and engaging viewers, fuels her passion and sense of purpose.

Challenging Stereotypes in Media

In response to the question of whether a "media face" exists or if anyone can excel in front of the camera, Khanyi believes that the notion is gradually fading away. She highlights the growing self-awareness among Africans, acknowledging the power and importance of representation in the media. The previously dominant standards set by Western culture are slowly becoming obsolete, as black individuals demand their rightful space in all areas of society.

Khanyi firmly believes that everyone, regardless of background or appearance, has the potential to succeed in front of the camera. It is no longer about conforming to a specific look or conforming to outdated beauty standards. The media face concept is becoming irrelevant as diversity and inclusivity take center stage. This progressive shift affirms the belief that everyone deserves equal opportunities to showcase their talents, skills, and perspectives in the media industry.

Khanyi Mabuza, the youngest news editor in Eswatini, is making her mark on the media industry with her undeniable talent, unwavering work ethic, and commitment to authenticity. Her journey is guided by the values instilled in her by her upbringing and cultural heritage. Khanyi's ability to separate her media persona from her daily life allows her to remain grounded and relatable to her audience.

As she continues to navigate the media landscape, Khanyi's aspirations extend beyond personal success. She aims to make a positive impact on the lives of others, particularly those in need. Her dedication to volunteer work and acts of kindness exemplify her desire to leave a lasting legacy of compassion and transformation.

With her dynamic role as a news editor, Khanyi's responsibilities span beyond the newsroom. From coordinating coverage of national events to utilizing her marketing expertise, she plays a vital role in the success of Yemaswati Channel. Her work is characterized by flexibility, adaptability, and an unwavering commitment to delivering accurate and engaging news content. Khanyi's journey and accomplishments serve as a testament to the power of passion, perseverance, and breaking barriers in the media industry. As a young and influential figure, she is shaping the future of media in Eswatini and inspiring others to pursue their dreams with determination and authenticity.

Fashion & Beauty Trends 90s

By: Lelo Mkholo

Let's delve into the fashion and beauty trends of the 90s and how they compare to current trends:

Fashion in the 90s:

1. Grunge: The 90s saw the rise of grunge fashion, characterized by oversized flannel shirts, ripped jeans, combat boots, and band t-shirts. This style was heavily influenced by the music scene, particularly bands like Nirvana and Pearl Jam.

2. Minimalism: Minimalistic fashion gained popularity in the 90s, with clean lines, neutral colors, and simple silhouettes. Brands like Calvin Klein and Jil Sander exemplified this aesthetic.

3. Denim Everything: Denim was a staple in 90s fashion, with denim jackets, high-waisted jeans, and denim skirts being popular choices. The "Canadian tuxedo" (denim-on-denim) was also a trend embraced during this era.

4. Sportswear: The 90s witnessed the rise of athleisure and sportswear as everyday fashion. Tracksuits, windbreakers, and sneakers became go-to choices for a casual and comfortable look.

Current Fashion Trends:

1. 90s Revival: Many fashion trends from the 90s have made a comeback in recent years. From slip dresses and chokers to high-waisted jeans and crop tops, these nostalgic styles have been reinterpreted for the modern era.

2. Sustainable Fashion: With an increased focus on sustainability, there has been a rise in eco-conscious fashion brands and consumers seeking out ethical and environmentally-friendly clothing options. This includes using organic fabrics, upcycling, and supporting fair trade practices.

3. Streetwear: Streetwear has become a dominant force in fashion, blending elements of sportswear, urban style, and high fashion. Brands like Supreme, Off-White, and Vetements have gained immense popularity, with their logo-centric designs and collaborations with artists and musicians.

4. Gender-Fluid Fashion: The current fashion landscape embraces gender-fluidity, with a blurring of traditional gender norms. This includes unisex clothing, gender-neutral collections, and a more inclusive approach to fashion representation.

Beauty in the 90s:

1. Bold Lips: Dark, matte lipsticks in shades like deep reds and browns were popular in the 90s. This was often paired with minimal eye makeup and a matte complexion.

2. Thin Eyebrows: Thin, highly arched eyebrows were a defining beauty trend in the 90s. Many people plucked or waxed their eyebrows into thin, precise shapes.

3. Frosted Makeup: Frosted or shimmery eyeshadows, lipsticks, and nail polishes were all the rage in the 90s. This added a touch of sparkle to makeup looks.

Current Beauty Trends:

1. Natural and Glowing Skin: The current beauty trend focuses on achieving a natural and radiant complexion. People are embracing minimal foundation, opting for lightweight formulas, and using skincare products that enhance their natural glow.

2. Bold and Defined Brows: Thick, well-defined eyebrows are in vogue now. People are filling in their brows to create a fuller, more natural shape using pencils, gels, or powders.

3. Dewy and Glossy Makeup: The trend of dewy, luminous skin has gained popularity. Highlighters, illuminating primers, and glossy finishes are used to create a fresh and youthful look.

4. 90s-Inspired Makeup: Nostalgia for the 90s has influenced current makeup trends. This includes brown-toned lipsticks, grungy smoky eyes, and graphic eyeliner looks.

Fashion and beauty trends are constantly evolving, but they often draw inspiration from the past. Whether it's the iconic styles of the 90s or the current focus on sustainability and inclusivity, both eras have left a lasting impact on the world of fashion and beauty.

THE 5 POWER PRINCIPLES TO GET PEOPLE TO BUY FROM YOU

By: Jumbo Khumalo

1. Be likable. Be charming and magnetic. Be a vibe. Be a positive energy. Love people. Like them and they will like you. They will in turn buy from you.

2. Connect. The key to connecting is listening deeply with your ears and eyes. Listen to what they say and observe their emotions. There are things they are passionate about. Pay attention to them. Find common ground.

3. Solve problems. Look for and solve problems even if you do not generate immediate business. Customers and people in general, like brands that solve their problems.

4. Go the extra mile. Sweep them off their feet. Always do more than you are required to do. Customers admire, respect and trust brands who are committed to excellence. Do not just do enough to get by. Going the extra mile will help you stand out from your competitors.

5. Create positive emotional experiences. In today's world, where people are willing to spend more money just to feel good, it is important that you find ways to create positive emotional experiences for people. Learn to make them feel that dealing with you is fun, relaxing and amazing.

I guarantee you, if you make people to like you, you will never have shortages of demand for your products. Everyone likes to be remembered, so remember people. Everyone is flattered by attention, so give it to them. Everyone values reliability and trustworthiness, so be reliable and trustworthy. Show that you care about them. Take care of your reputation.

START YOUR DAY RIGHT...

By: Babhekwa Dlamini

Dear reader, every day is an opportunity to start afresh and make your day what you would want it to be. The moment you open your eyes every morning, that's an opportunity, to create a life you want. If you can dream it, you can do it.

However, the reality is, not all mornings are as smooth as your typical 10 step plan on how to start your day. Sometimes things don't go right! Rushing only adds stress and anxiety to your day. After realizing how unpredictable my mornings can be, I decided to add something to my routine. That has made my days easier.

Here are a few affirmations to help start your day. I pray these affirmations help you in your faith and that you get a sense of peace as you wake up daily.

- o I CAN DO ALL THINGS THROUGH CHRIST (PHILLIPIAN 4:13)
- o I AM NOT AFRAID FOR GOD HAS GIVEN ME THE SPIRIT OF FEAR (2 TIMOTHY 1:7)
- o I AM FEARFULLY AND WONDERFULLY MADE (PSALM 139:14)
- o I AM FILLED WITH POWER (MICAH 3:8)
- )
- o GOD HAS GREAT PLANS FOR ME (JEREMIAH 29:11)
- o I AM A CHILD OF GOD (JOHN 14:6)
- o I AM STRONG (ISIAIH 40:31)
- o I AM NOT ALONE (MATTHEW 28:20)

By saying these affirmations, you are not just uttering a string of letters and sentences, but you are speaking words that carry God's spirit in them. The scripture in the book of Hebrews 4:12 says "For the word of God is living and powerful, and sharper than any two-edged sword, piercing even to the division of soul and spirit, and of joints and marrow, and is a discern-er of the thoughts and intents of the heart."

INVESTING IN GENUINE FRIENDSHIPS

By: Ziyanda Souza

In the previous month we touched base on investing and I am sure we all know investing is not only about money. It may also be about relationships. In this month's issue we have one of Facebook's influencer who goes by the name of Flex Miso II. He highlights some of the few aspects of investing in a friendship.

This is what Miso had to say: “As a young person it is very important to be able to recognize the signs of a one-sided friendship. You have to do that in order to avoid wasting time and energy on a relationship that is not mutually beneficial.” The longer we stay in one-sided friendships is the more difficult it becomes to establish healthy boundaries in a relationship. That leads to codependency and a toxic relationship.

Karma says, “Never get too attached to anyone unless they also feel the same towards you, this is because one sided expectations can mentally, physically and spiritually destroy you.”

Being in a friendship that you know the feeling is mutual is more of a good investment. This is because there's never a time where you will feel drained by the friendship. Instead you will always be looking forward to making memories with this person.

There's a lot one can invest in a friendship. That includes time as well as money spent on dates, lunch and vacations. That is why it is very important that you are able to tell if it's a one sided friendship or not.

We have all had it rough. We have been betrayed countless times, but there are pure and genuine people out there. So my advice to you is that you should be willing to take the risk and explore. A failed friendship is a lesson for tomorrow.

VARSITY LIFE - SURVIVING EXAM BLUES

By: Nkosephayo Dlamini

Exam season is upon us. This statement alone breathes anxiety into most students. All those who have successfully gone through this period pass on one and the same advice to those who come after them, 'Just hang in there, it will be worth it in the end.' I myself received advice that carried me through all my exams: 'Pray like you won't study and study like you won't pray'.

Everyone has placed their hope in something or another. This includes calling pastors they only see once or twice a year for prayers or submitting their books and pens to traditional healers and prophets. But before you surrender yourself to stress, try to keep in mind these bitter sweet truths.

Obsessing over a paper after you've written it will do more harm than good. There's nothing you can do after you have submitted. After an exam, make it a practice to remove all notes and books on papers that you've written. Do a mini refresh and focus on the next paper. Remove or hide these, but don't throw them away because this is still Varsity after all.

Another great piece of advice I got over the years was to be confident about my wrong answers. If someone asks what  $1+1$  is, the obvious answer is 2, right? Well if I come up with 3, then what? Always keep in mind that you can confidently defend a wrong answer and convince your marker to see things from your point of view.

There is no wrong answer in adult education for a reason.  $1+1$  is still 2 though, in case there is confusion on that one. My point is, explaining gibberish could give you a 4 out of 10 which is much better than leaving a blank space when taking an exam.

Lastly, don't forget that these exams will come to an end eventually. As you sit to take this exam remember that you will never sit to write this exact paper again. The reality of life is, if you think a paper was hard, wait till you get to the next semester. It always gets harder! So that paper is both the hardest you've had so far and also the easiest considering what's coming. Don't kill yourself over one paper, you still have so far to go! You are allowed to enjoy yourself, learning can be fun.

THE GIFT OF GENEROSITY

By: Sibonile Cbobo Bulunga

See You At The Top: How and why did you get started in philanthropy?

ILLA: My name is Sifiso Ndlangamandla from Hlathikhulu and I'm the Founder of Illa Penboy Foundation. I grew up in a community which was less privilege. Both my parents were working when I was still attending school and they usually bought me 2 pairs of school shoes such that the other pair I gave them away to my friends who needed school shoes. So from then I learnt to be a giver.

SYATT: Is Illa Penboy Foundation a bigger investment?

ILLA: Yes it is a bigger investment such that I dedicate myself into giving. I love spreading love. To those who are in need, I love to give in a hand because I want to see them win and you cannot win if you have a problem. I love being a problem solver to what they need.

SYATT: What other philanthropic work are you involved in?

ILLA: Currently I'm involved in a community project that is called "Arise Makoti" that was introduced by Makoti Festival. This project was formed to empower Makoti to endorse into business.

SYATT: Does the foundation assist only Emaswati or are there any charity work done outside Eswatini?

ILLA: Currently we have assisted a lot of families in Eswatini and I would love to continue to assist in other countries outside Eswatini, such as Mozambique, South Africa and International countries that needs help.

SYATT: How do you decide on how much of your wealth and time to give philanthropically? Certain people view philanthropy as a way of showing off. What is your take on that one?

ILLA: I feel like those people are not Ok. But I will continue to help those who need help.

SYATT: I've seen you mingling with other philanthropists such as Bathu Founder. What is their reaction about the foundation?

ILLA: Engaging yourself into conversations such as Bathu Founder is a great opportunity because you get to know the business operations such as how to manufacture shoes. You get a chance to endorse your ideas with him. As Illa Penboy Foundation, it is all about charity so our idea is to manufacture school shoes and let them be sold in cheaper prices to the community so that everyone can afford it, because it is cheaper to produce than outsourcing.

SYATT: Would you like to see philanthropy have more power and influence?

ILLA: Yes, because the world's richest individuals such as Oprah Winfrey have enough power and influence, she established foundations and initiatives to channel her wealth into causes she is passionate about. You can have power and influence through philanthropy since it involves strategic and systematic giving with the intent of creating sustainable change.

What's the most awkward thing you experienced during a sleepover? It doesn't have to be mjolo related.

By: Mayenziwe Magongo

Anonymous:

"I had a weird and strange experience, I got strangled by something that was moving on top of the roof... it sounds more like a lie nor a bad dream but it sure wasn't sleep paralysis because I was wide awake when it happened."

Anonymous:

"I was at my then boyfriend's homestead for a sleepover where I asked him to accompany me to their outhouse "outdoor toilet" and he refused, I then decided to go by myself and just when I turned by the corner of the house I saw a very tall person who was standing and looking towards my direction, I got so terrified and screamed my lungs out which led to everyone being abruptly woken up & rushed outside to see what was happening and that's where they saw me on my knees still crying because of what I had seen, however they couldn't see what I saw and I stood there like a lunatic."

Anonymous:

"This one is definitely not mjolo related, I visited a friend of mine whom I consumed alcohol with until we were both drunk and had passed out, not knowing that we would be woken up at 3am for a prayer session that went on until the morning light, that's literally the day I'll never forget and apparently I was never told about the family church."

Anonymous:

"I went to a sleep over at this guy's place whose house was filthy, blankets and sheets had a funny smell and were itching, there were Roaches and Rats party in the house. I had sinusitis right there and then, I also woke up with a rash on my face and sore eyes, we really need the Gents to clean their houses/rooms, change bedding every now and then for a fresh breeze."

ANONYMOUS WITH MAYENZIWE

Anonymous:

"I've never been angrier than I was the day I decided to go for a sleepover at my boyfriend's place. I went to his place and he was still at work but he told me where I'll find the house keys then let myself in. I got inside his house and decided to do wife duties (house chores) meanwhile waiting for him to return back from work, I had everything done then I sat and watched TV and that's where I heard a knock by the door, I stood up to go open and there was a lady dressed in a fully white attire, surprisingly she let herself in, sat in the opposite direction of where I was sitting.

We said nothing to each other as I was still shocked as to what was really happening, after a couple of minutes she stood up and went straight to the refrigerator to get herself a drink to quench thirst I guess, whilst she was at that...I texted my guy and told her A,B,C lady came over and she's now helping herself around the house, did he not say the lady was a GHOST? & he stated that she usually comes over from time to time, he further said he'll no longer be coming home as he'll go crash at his friend's place and I should also leave the house and see where I go from there, goddammit the time was around 11pm and the rest was history. AFTER GOD, FEAR MEN!
